Welcome to Our Dementia Journey

This journal was created by family members of persons living with dementia, healthcare workers, representatives from the Alzheimer Society of Canada and the SE Research Centre at SE Health.

This version was adapted with the help of people from South Asian communities in Canada. They shared their knowledge and understanding to make sure it fits well with the unique experiences in South Asian communities in Canada.

You can use this journal along with your friends, family and health care providers as you experience the dementia journey together. We hope you find the journal helpful.

You can choose which activities or pages will be most helpful. We suggest storing these papers in a binder to keep them together.

Dementia is a journey

Dementia is a medical term used to describe symptoms like memory loss, trouble with thinking, problem-solving, or speaking.

There are many types of dementia—the most common ones you may have heard of are Alzheimer’s disease, Lewy body dementia, frontotemporal lobe dementia, or mixed dementia. Sometimes people also refer to dementia as a neurocognitive disorder.

Even though dementia shows up differently in each person, common symptoms include memory loss, personality changes, and difficulty with tasks. It’s important to note that dementia is a progressive condition, meaning that symptoms may evolve over time.

Instead of thinking of dementia as a negative experience, it can be seen as a unique journey shared by the person living with dementia and those who support them.

One way to make the journey easier is to create a circle of care. The term “circle of care” means a group of people who work together to support the person living with dementia. This group includes the person living with dementia, family and friends who help or care for them, and healthcare providers such as personal support workers, dieticians, physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech and language pathologists, nurses and doctors. Building strong relationships and keeping open communication within this circle of care, can make the dementia journey more manageable.

How to use this journal

Who should contribute to this journal?

Anyone who is within the circle of care can contribute to this journal. This may include the person living with dementia, family or friends who help or care for them, and healthcare providers who help care for a person living with dementia.

What can you use this journal for?

This journal contains activities designed to help you on your dementia journey. The journey is full of changes, and these activities can help you prepare for them and address the challenges ahead.

When can you use this journal?

You can use this journal as much or as little as you feel you want or need. Some activities have a suggested time to complete; others are up to you to choose.

How can you use this journal?

The journal can be used in many ways. It is up to you to decide which parts are helpful to you.

Some ways to use the journal include:

- Take it to appointments to share your concerns or observations
- Share memories and essential information about the person with dementia
- Take care of your mental health with self-care activities
- Build relationships with new members of the circle of care as the circle expands to meet the needs of the person with dementia.

Guiding principles

Respect the circle of care:

Realize that everyone in the circle of care has linked lives as you are on the dementia journey together. Strengthen this circle of care, respect the needs of the person living with dementia and their family and friends and build stronger relationships with care providers in professional roles.

Use an individual and family-centred approach:

Focus on building strong relationships with each individual in the circle of care. Provide care that considers all of the different dimensions of wellness, and offer proactive, timely, well-coordinated support to promote wellness.

Share your knowledge, and accept the difference:

Recognize the value each person brings to the circle of care, information that only they know.

Get to know me

A conversation starter

Purpose

This activity is meant to help all members of the circle of care to get to know each other better.

Participants

This activity can be completed by anyone within the circle of care including the person living with dementia, their care providers and family members or friends who help or care for them.

Timing

Content may be reviewed and updated as needed and/or as changes occur.

Instructions

This activity is intended to be a conversation between members of the circle of care. Please feel free to skip any questions or topics that you don't want to talk about, and don't hesitate to add your own!

Acknowledgement

Get to know me

A Conversation Starter

Date: _____

Name, preferred language & places

Individual's name, nickname, title or traditional name. Ask questions like: What is your preferred language? Where are you from? Where were you born? When did you move to your current location?

Life roles/occupations, significant events & achievements

Ask questions like: What kind of things were you gifted at? What are you proud of? What memories do you hold in your heart?

Spirituality, religion & traditions

Ask questions like: Are you part of a spiritual community? What beliefs bring you comfort and strength? Are there specific spiritual or cultural practices that are important to you?

What keeps me going?

Ask questions like: What are your hobbies? For example, crafts, singing, cooking, knitting, cutting vegetable or fruits, storytelling. What are your favourite topics of conversation/music? What makes you happy? What are some ways you express your gratitude?

Important people in my life

Record the names and relationships of individuals who are essential. Ask questions like: Tell me about your parents, grandparents, siblings, or friends. Who do you identify as your family? Who do you trust? Who do you like to spend time with? Who helps you do what you need to do? Have you ever had a pet or cared for an animal? What is/was their name?

What helps me feel connected every day

How a person spends a typical day, including morning and evening routines and social and recreational activities. Ask about: Socialization preferences. Are you happy with visitors? Are you happy eating with others? When do you prefer to be alone? What do you like to do during the day? (e.g., watching TV, playing cards)

Sleep/wake preferences

Do you sleep well? When do you go to sleep, and when do you wake up? What do you like to do when you wake up?

Food preferences

What food do you like? What food do you dislike?

Other personal preferences

For example, likes to be clean-shaven and wear makeup, favorite clothing items, and rituals/routines followed.

The Care Collage

Purpose

To create a visual representation of what each member of the circle of care has experienced and expects in dementia care.

Timing

We suggest that you complete this activity during any transition period along the dementia journey. This may include when you first get a diagnosis or when you first need help with home care.

Participants

Assess the situation – Ideally, anyone in the circle of care will work together on this activity.

- Early in the journey, this activity may be best suited for the person living with dementia and their family/friend(s) to complete together.
- This activity is suitable for family members/friends and care provider(s) if the person living with dementia is unable to participate.

Material

1. A variety of pre-cut images from photos, magazines and newspapers
2. Glue or tape
3. Pen, pencil, or markers

Instructions

Create a collage representing your experiences and thoughts about dementia care. Discuss your collage with your circle of care. Alternately, you can create a song and poems as part of this activity.

Suggested Discussion Questions

1. What does each image mean to you?
2. What does “care” to you?
3. What does each person see as their role in dementia care?

My 5 Important Things

Purpose

To help you share the most important things about you with the other members of the circle of care. This is especially important when a new member joins the circle of care.

Timing

We suggest that you complete this activity during any transition period along the dementia journey. This may include when you first get a diagnosis or when you first need help with home care.

Participants

Assess the situation – ideally, anyone in the circle of care will work together on this activity.

- Early in the journey, this activity may be best suited for the person living with dementia and their family or friends to complete together.
- If the person living with dementia is unable to do so, this activity may be completed by their family members or friends and care provider(s).

Materials

1. My 5 Important Things template
2. Pen or pencil

Instructions

- This activity can be completed from the different perspectives of those in the circle of care
- Using the template below, first, reflect and list the “Top 5 Important Things” you wish a new care provider knew. Then match each “important thing” with a reason why it is important for the care provider to know.
- Use this page as a “cover letter” when a new person joins your circle of care to help communicate what’s really important in your journey.

My 5 Important Things

Well-being Check-In

Purpose

This activity can help you think about your overall well-being by asking five simple questions. Using this tool can help you understand or communicate your feelings. If your overall score decreases over time, you may want to seek help or talk to someone about what's happening in your life.

Timing

We suggest completing this activity every two weeks, but you can use it as often or as little as you like.

Participants

Everyone in the circle of care is encouraged to track their well-being.

Instructions

- Please indicate for each of the five statements which most closely describes how you have been feeling over the past two weeks.
- Note that higher numbers mean better well-being.
- Example: If you felt happy and in a good mood more than half of the time during the past two weeks, put a tick in the box numbered 3 in the upper right corner.

Name:

Date:

Score*:

Over the last two weeks:	All of the time	Most of the time	More than half of the time	Less than half of the time	Some of the time	At no time
I have felt cheerful and in good spirits	5	4	3	2	1	0
I have felt calm and relaxed	5	4	3	2	1	0
I have felt active and vigorous	5	4	3	2	1	0
I woke up feeling fresh and rested	5	4	3	2	1	0
My daily life has been filled with things that interest me	5	4	3	2	1	0

*Your score is calculated by totaling the figures of the five answers. The score ranges from 0 to 25, 0 representing worst possible and 25 representing best possible quality of life.

You can use the orange pages to reflect on your score. Can you talk to someone about how you are feeling?

Alzheimer's and Dementia Person-Centred Symptoms Tracker

Purpose

The purpose of this activity is to keep track of symptoms of dementia on a monthly basis. You should take the symptoms tracker pages with you when you talk to a healthcare provider or someone you trust.

Timing

We suggest you update these pages every 30 days. If you notice a big change in the person with dementia that you want to keep a record of, you can update this page more often.

Participants

This activity was originally designed to help friends or family of someone living with dementia in monitoring their symptoms. However, it can be used by anyone in the circle of care to keep track of dementia-related symptoms.

Instructions

1. Use the table to track the type and frequency of symptoms that the person living with dementia is exhibiting
2. Update the table once every 30 days
3. Discuss any changes or concerns with other members of the circle of care including health care providers

Alzheimer's and Dementia Person-Centred Symptoms Tracker

Each person's experience with Alzheimer's or Dementia is unique to them. Symptoms may change frequently and progress differently with each person and can be affected by many factors. This tool was designed to help the family or friend caregiver track the type and frequency of the symptoms your loved one is exhibiting to support better communication and planning with your medical team and other healthcare providers as you collaborate in identifying the best possible treatment and interventions based upon your specific situation.

Diary writing and Reflection

Diary Entries

There are many ways to reflect on your dementia journey.

You may use these reflection pages to note the activities that happen in a day and your feelings about them.

Record or draw any emotions you are feeling; this is where you can record ups and downs.

Some people feel better or more confident when they write things down. Others like to look back after some time to see how they were feeling in the past.

Dementia

10 warning signs

Whether you're concerned for yourself or someone you care about, it's important to know the warning signs of dementia so you can ensure an early diagnosis. Here are 10 of the most common warning signs for dementia.

Please list any concerns you have and take this sheet with you to the doctor. Note: This list is for informational purposes only and is not a substitute for consultation with a qualified professional.

- 1. MEMORY CHANGES THAT AFFECT DAILY LIFE. It is normal to sometimes forget meetings or co-worker names only to remember them a short time later. But a person with dementia may forget things more often. Or it might be hard for them to remember information they just learned.

- 2. DIFFICULTY DOING FAMILIAR TASKS. Busy people can be so distracted sometimes that they may forget to serve part of a meal, only to remember it later. But a person living dementia may have trouble doing tasks they have done all their lives, such as preparing a meal or playing a game.

- 3. CHANGES IN LANGUAGE AND COMMUNICATION. Anyone can have trouble finding the right word. But a person with dementia may forget simple words. Or they may use the wrong words, making that person hard to understand.

4. DISORIENTATION IN TIME AND SPACE. It is common to forget the day of the week or your destination — for a moment. But a person with dementia may become lost on their own street. They may not know how they got there or how to get home.

5. IMPAIRED JUDGEMENT. Sometimes, people may make bad decisions such as putting off seeing a doctor when they are not feeling well. But a person with dementia may not recognize a medical problem that needs attention, or wear heavy clothing on a hot day.

6. PROBLEMS WITH ABSTRACT THINKING. Sometimes, people may have difficulty with tasks that require abstract thinking, such as managing finances. But a person with dementia may experience challenges with understanding what numbers are and how they are used.

7. MISPLACING THINGS. Anyone can temporarily misplace a wallet or keys. But a person with dementia may put things in inappropriate places, such as an iron in the freezer or a wristwatch in the sugar bowl.

8. CHANGES IN MOOD, PERSONALITY AND BEHAVIOUR. Sometimes people feel sad and moody, or experience changes in their behaviour. But a person living with dementia may experience more severe changes. For example, they may quickly become tearful or upset for no obvious reason. They may be confused or suspicious and withdraw from others. They may act differently from what is normal for them.

9. LOSS OF INITIATIVE. It is normal to lose interest in housework, business activities or social obligations sometimes. But most people regain their initiative. A person with dementia may become passive and disinterested. They may need cues and prompts to become involved.

10. CHALLENGES UNDERSTANDING VISUAL AND SPATIAL INFORMATION. A person with dementia may have problems with vision, depth perception and movement. They might not see objects in their way when walking. Or they might have challenges placing items on a table.
